

Pricing Policy

Transparent pricing is important to us. It is Codingal's policy to clearly communicate the pricing structure for the services offered on our website, <https://www.codingal.com>, and other platforms we own and operate.

We offer a free trial class to allow students and parents to experience our teaching methodology, class structure, and learning approach before making any payment. Booking a free trial class does not require any payment or commitment.

Paid services are offered after the completion of the free trial class. Pricing for our programs is displayed on the website on a per-session basis, including on the homepage, to help parents understand the cost structure before proceeding further.

The pricing of our services may vary depending on factors such as the selected course, class format (one-to-one or group classes), class duration, and the number of sessions included in a plan. Any applicable discounts are clearly shown where pricing is displayed.

Payments for services are processed through authorized and secure payment gateways. All pricing details, including applicable taxes and the final payable amount, are clearly displayed on the payment page prior to completing a transaction.

By proceeding with a payment, users acknowledge and accept the pricing structure as displayed on the website at the time of purchase.

For any questions related to pricing or payments, users may contact us through the contact information provided on our website.
